Key & bit encoding method. Each signal has a ~~single~~ 'key' associated to it that triggers different internal branches to different outputs based on how well the 'key' fits & triggers the 'hole' after processing through each internal branch. Information is added / changed in the signal and 'keys' are added / manipulated ~~and~~ each can only fit through larger holes etc.

Something like how a virus binds to the surface of a cell.

Some concept seen
be applied to dreams?
